THE PRICE OF SAFETY

CERTAIN railroad has a sign at each of its crossings which reads: "Stop! Look! Listen!" All true Americans the committeemen would decide to in their declaration that the enforce should visualize this warning. The nation is in greater peril than report. is the person who approaches a railroad crossing. There is danger confronting us and constant vigilance is imperative. Stop and watch anyone of not proven loyalty. Listen to his utterances. He may be an enemy alien or he may be native-born. The latter are the more dangerous, for the enemy alien realizes that little grace will be given him if he doesn't talk right. So he is wary of his speech, but may grow ineautious.

We of the remote desert cannot realize the suffering that I IIL the kaiser and his willing servitors, his enthusiastic, chauvinistic living chattels, have brought to mankind. We know, however that he and they have put a curse upon civilization and re verted the world to barbarism. They must suffer. They must repay. It is not the time to talk peace in public and plan unspeakable erime in private. The war must go on until Germany is on its knees, biting the dust and crying out in agony of soul.

THE BALL IS ROLLING.

THE Bonanza is pleased to note that the Reno Gazette, among others, has taken up this paper's fight for the repeal of the British and Canadian war missions apex provision in the federal mining laws. The Gazette is a powerful organ, one with wide circulation and great influence. It was hitherto owned by people who had profited through the operation of the provision which is to be abolished. There was a of the purpose of the premier's visit doubt as to the Gazette, and a reasonable one, but now that has other than that he came to discuss been removed through the publication of February 25th. TN SILVER countries, the high price has the effect of giving I the stock of the white metal in that country a higher pur chasing value, especially for imported goods; while it hinders the exports from that country as the quantity of silver obtained in exchange is not as large as the seller has been accustomed to. The exception, of course, are goods that have seen an increase three or more times over their pre-war value.

Translated into the experience of China it meant that last year the Chinese hesitated to export goods of a non-essential character to Europeans and which, therefore, had failed to rise in price in the same measure as farm products and other raw materials.
